

Damar's Brand Evangelists

David and Judy Reed

At the urging of a close friend, David and Judy Reed toured Damar's campus in early 2007.

"When introduced to Damar's mission, David and Judy both invested everything they had," said Damar President & CEO Greg Johnson. "Recently referred to as the Damar brand evangelists for their desire to share the Damar story with everyone they can, David and Judy are two very special and dedicated people."

David and Judy have supported a specialized school for their adoptive daughter who is facing her own challenges.

"The feeling of having nowhere to turn is horrible," shared Judy. "When David and I heard that nearly 200 children who need Damar are turned away each year, we knew we had to lead this great effort and were nearly begging for them to let us get involved!"

"The pay-off of helping lead Damar into a new future has paid us in dividends far more than we could ever do for Damar," said David.
